40-MILE SPEED LIMIT IS NOW A STATE LAW

New Motor Vehicle Code Became Effective Throughout State Today.

SAFETY IS AIM

Motorists of Gettysburg and Adams county, in fact all Pennsylvania motorists and those visiting within the boundaries of this commonwealth may drive their automobile 40 miles an hour over state highways. This applies to passenger cars only.

The traffic provisions of the new motor vehicle code passed by the last legislature became effective this morning. The old law provided for a speed of 35 miles per hour.

Increases in fees for registration of motor buses and trucks and drivers' licenses also included in the new code, do not go into effect until January 1, 1930. The bureau of motor vehicles, which administers the motor laws, will be transferred from the highway department to the new department of Revenue, but the change will involve little physical work.

Safety Is Aim
While not as drastic as laws passed in previous years, the new traffic regulations were drafted with a view of establishing greater safety on the open road and at the same time of speeding up traffic to a point of minimum hazard to motorists on the present day improved highways with modern automobiles. Efforts were made to further standardize traffic regulation so as to afford the least amount of confusion in the various municipalities.

Enforcement of the new regulations will begin immediately. Captain Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the state highway patrol said today. Captain Price has sent instructions to all patrolmen to see

$201,005 ROAD FUND IS READY

County's Share Of Allocated Motor Fund Based On 31.89 Miles.

Adams county's share of the $23,500,000 allocated for new road construction throughout Pennsylvania in 1929 and 1930 under the Wheeler-Flynn act, recently approved by Gov. John S. Fisher, will be $201,005.93, according to figures made public today by James L. Stuart, secretary of highways.

The money is allocated from the motor fund to the counties in the ratio of unimproved state highway mileage in the county to the unimproved mileage in the state, and will be expended on roads designated as state highways.

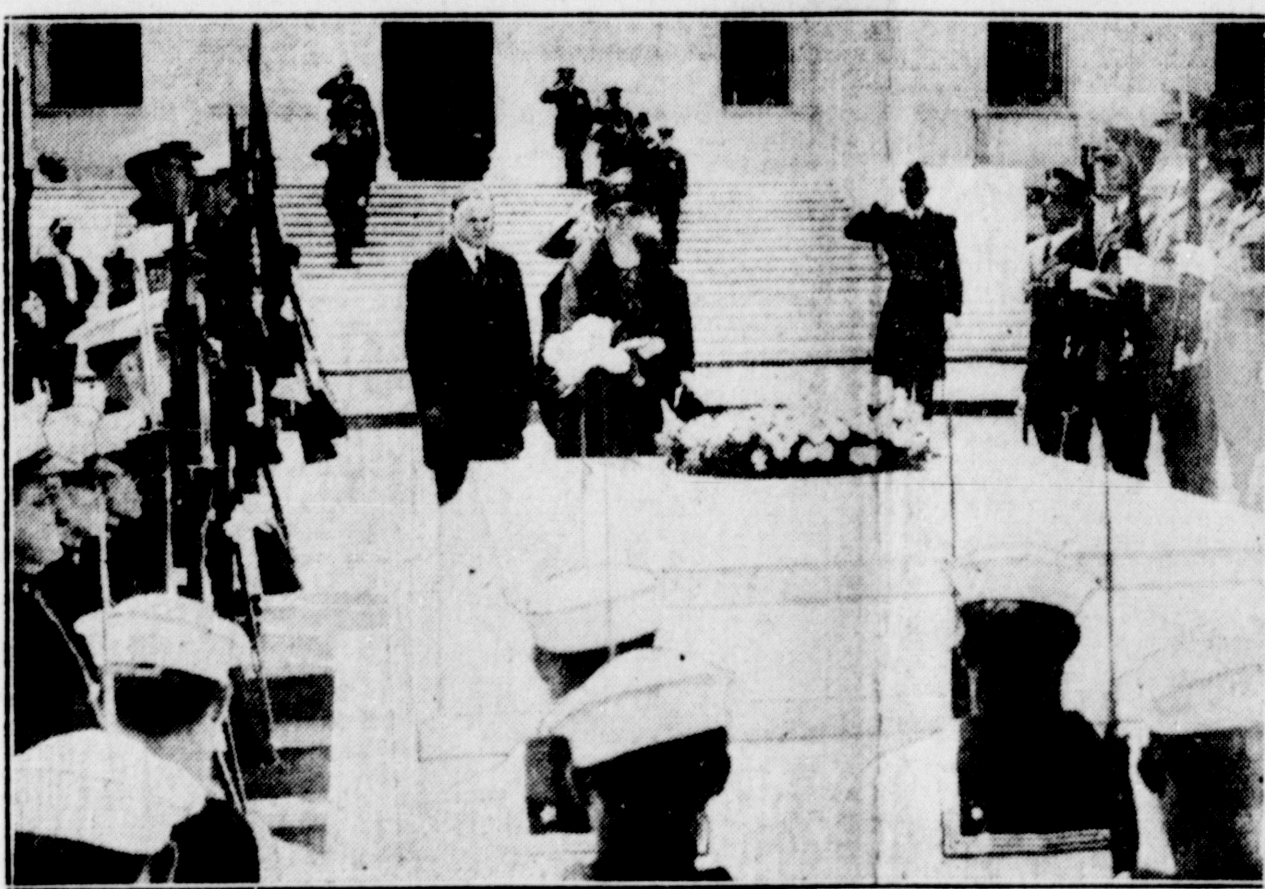

Adams county has 31.89 miles of unimproved state roads as compared with 4,190.94 miles throughout the state. York county, with 35.22 miles of unimproved state roads, is entitled to only $201,110.06 from the allocated funds, and Franklin county, which has 58.64 miles of unimproved highway, is scheduled to receive $330,660.38 from the fund.

Taneytown Road First
The first road in Adams county to be improved with money from the allocated motor fund is the Gettysburg-Taneytown road. This road will be improved by the macadam process from Round Top to the Pennsylvania-Maryland line. With the remainder of the money, the Biglerville-Heidersburg road will be improved as far as the funds reach.

The Taneytown road will be improved this summer.

BUY GAME FOR RESTOCKING

Board Of Game Commissioners Plan To Purchase Much Game For Hunters.

For restocking purposes this season the Board of Game Commissioners plan to contract for 75,000 cottontail rabbits, 500 raccoons, 100 fox squirrels, and from 10,000 to 15,000 bob-white quail.

Rabbits can be procured without difficulty, as can fox squirrels. But there seems to be no large market for "coon" and it may be difficult to procure as many as 500 of these popular creatures.

The chief difficulty will be in securing the bob-white quail since these birds are purchased in Mexico, where adverse weather conditions often prevent the filling of large orders. This year the shipper failed to complete his order due to one of the heaviest draughts in that section for over 20 years.

Many Young Grouse
Many reports have been received at the offices of the game commission concerning the finding of grouse nests and eggs, as well as large broods of very small young. Several clutches of eggs from which the female had either been driven by a creature of prey, or else deserted, were found. In a number of cases the eggs were successfully hatched at several game refuges. The eggs were placed under hens. Also, very young grouse have been picked up by persons hiking through the woods, and these people, thinking that the young creatures had been deserted, brought them home with them. The tiny birds did not survive, however, due to lack of proper food and care.

Persons finding young grouse (or any other game birds or animals) while in the wood will be doing the creatures a far greater favor by letting them alone. Nine chances out of ten the parent bird will locate them, according to a statement from the commission.

Maniac-Slayer Is Decapitated

Chicago, June 1 (AP).—Ferdinand Treuss, the maniac who shot three men dead and wounded three others while in a drunken fury yesterday, was decapitated today by a Chicago and Northwestern railroad train. A body found on the right-of-way was identified positively by a fishing license issued to Treuss and police believed the man, sobered overnight, realized the tragedy of yesterday and committed suicide.

The condition of Treuss' body indicated he had lain on the track and waited for the train to run over him, police said.

Treuss, a war veteran and expert marksman, killed two policemen and a civilian yesterday and wounded two policemen and a civilian with a pump shot gun. The police were members of a squad sent to arrest him after neighbors heard him threaten to kill his wife.

John L. Conley leader of the detective squad was the first to fall before the madman. After mortally wounding him Treuss fired at another policeman and the others who came in an attempt to rescue them.

Wind Blows Man's Arm Out Of Joint While On Air Trip

While pointing out objects to his son who had accompanied him on an airplane ride over the battlefield, Friday evening, L. J. Himes, of Widnoon, suffered a dislocation of his left shoulder when the wind forced the arm out of the socket.

Himes told Paul Charles, pilot at the Gettysburg airport, who was at the controls, that he had dislocated the arm several years ago, and that since then the shoulder was weak.

The injured man was taken to the Warner hospital from the airport, where the arm was sprung back into place, after which he was discharged. This morning Himes took another trip over the battlefield by airplane, being delighted with the experience.

DR. J. P. DALBEY IS IMPROVED

Gettysburg Physician Shows Marked Improvement In Last 24 Hours.

Encouraging reports today came from the Harrisburg hospital on the condition of Dr. J. P. Dalbey, Gettysburg physician, who has been ill for a week from appendicitis, complicated with peritonitis. "Doctor Dalbey is better than he was on Friday and much better than he was on Thursday," Dr. Ben Millard, an interne at the hospital, informed The Gettysburg Times by long distance telephone this afternoon.

The same encouraging reports were brought back to Gettysburg by Dr. H. M. Hartman and Attorney J. Donald Swope, who went to Harrisburg this morning after being notified Friday night that they were to report to the hospital today for another possible blood transfusion.

Ready for Transfusion
When Dr. Hartman and Attorney Swope reached the hospital this morning, they were informed that the ill physician had shown such marked improvement since the first transfusion of blood, given by Dr. Hartman, early Friday morning, that it would not be necessary for either one to give blood for the present, although both were told to hold themselves in readiness to donate blood if a change for the worse was noted. Both Dr. Hartman and Attorney Swope then returned to Gettysburg.

Dr. Dalbey has been in much better spirits today than any time since he was removed to the Harrisburg hospital on Wednesday, and this improvement was considered to be in his favor, although he is still not out of danger.

Mrs. Dalbey has been with her husband since he was admitted to the hospital.

Lightning Bolt Kills E. I. Bair, Prominent Farmer, On Friday

36-Year-Old President Of Union Township School Board Killed While Assisting His Father-in-law; Electric Flash Fells Countian While He Was Plowing.

Struck by a bolt of lightning while operating a tractor on the farm of his father-in-law, George W. Basehoar, of Littlestown, Elmer I. Bair, 36, president of the Union township school board, and prominent young farmer, was instantly killed at 2:30 o'clock, Friday afternoon.

Basehoar's farm is about half a mile from the old Henry Forry farm, owned by W. L. Forry, Harrisburg, and tenanted by Bair. Both places are about two miles northeast of Littlestown.

Mr. Bair had responded at noon to a request from his father-in-law to assist on his farm with some plowing, which he had begun shortly after noon. A shower of rain had driven the workers from the field to the house soon after commencing the work. The sky having cleared, the work was resumed, when in a flash, out of an apparently harmless heaven, there came a blinding bolt of lightning which struck Bair as he drove the tractor, spread itself over the upper body region, and rendered him instantly lifeless, at the same time setting fire to his clothing.

AERIAL SIGN PHOTOGRAPHED

First Elks Official Aerial Marking Is Completed By Gettysburg Lodge.

The first official Elks aerial marking in the nation wide movement which will embrace all of the 1550 Elks lodges in the country, is completed and an aerial photograph was made this afternoon.

The first aerial marking was painted by authorization of the local Elks lodge. The air marking for aviators has been painted atop the Gettysburg National bank. The aerial photograph was taken this afternoon by S. W. Kuhnert, of Harrisburg, with Pilot Paul Charles at the controls. The photographs will be furnished the local lodge, the Elks magazine and the National convention of Elks by the Gettysburg airport through the courtesy of Howard C. Mittinger, resident manager.

The sign meets all requirements of the United States Department of Commerce. Each letter in the word Gettysburg is 12 feet high. Below the word Gettysburg, which is 110 feet long, is the word Elks and the lodge number, 1045, each letter and number of which is 8 feet high. Above the word Gettysburg is a huge arrow pointing north with the letter N in the center. At the extreme end of the sign is a huge circle, 27 feet in diameter with an arrow pointing in the direction of the Gettysburg airport. The entire sign complies with all requirements and specifications of the Department of Commerce.

In an early issue of the Elks magazine the Gettysburg photograph will accompany a special article dealing with aerial markings of towns and cities by Elks lodges.

Another brother-in-law, Jay D. Basehoar, was likewise running another tractor in a nearby field. The father-in-law, George W. Basehoar, was also nearby. Each of the four were aware that lightning had struck close.

Tractor Is Reversed
The tractor was thrown in reverse, and was spinning in the furrow when stopped by George D. Basehoar. Mr. Bair was taken from the tractor by those who were near, and the fire in his clothing extinguished. The bolt struck Mr. Bair on the head, two scorch marks on the scalp indicating where the lightning hit.

Mr. Bair was aged 36 years, three months and four days. BALDWIN FACES SERIOUS MOVE

London, June 1 (AP).—Faced with defeat of his party Premier Stanley Baldwin went to his country home for the week-end where it is expected he will confer with leading members of his party.

Next week he will meet the cabinet and decide upon the course the government will take. With the administration defeated at the polls in Thursday's general election and the labor party, the largest in the next House, though lacking an absolute majority, the Prime Minister has two alternatives.

He may place his resignation in the hands of the King and leave to Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, the duties of forming a Labor government or he may reconstruct his stricken ministry, meet Parliament and place on the Liberals the decision of either supporting him or putting Labor into office.

With 13 districts out of 615 unreported the line that now confronts the Prime Minister is as follows: Labor 287, Conservatives 253, Liberals 54, others 8.

Price of Wheat Crop Disturbing Question As New Harvest Nears

Harvest activities, such as are soon to start on 40,000,000 acres of winter wheat. Below: Overflow granaries being piled on the ground in Kansas to await market outlet or go to waste.

Kansas City, Mo. (AP).—A distinct price worry perturbs the mind of the farmer in the winter wheat belt as he grooms his machinery for the annual harvest.

His apprehension as to what the new crop will be worth is aggravated by the existence of one of the heaviest carry-overs of old wheat this country ever has experienced.

Forty million acres, an area exceeding only five times in history, soon will go to harvest. Against

Blundering Busher of '28 Is No-Hit Hero

By Jay Vessels

New York (AP).—Passing harsh judgment on bush leaguers for mistakes in their debut was discouraged sharply when Carl Hubbell helped himself to a no-hit no-run game.

This young Giant southpaw in his debut last summer was about the sorriest prospect ever seen at the Polo grounds. And when he plunged himself into disgrace he carried along his exasperated teammates.

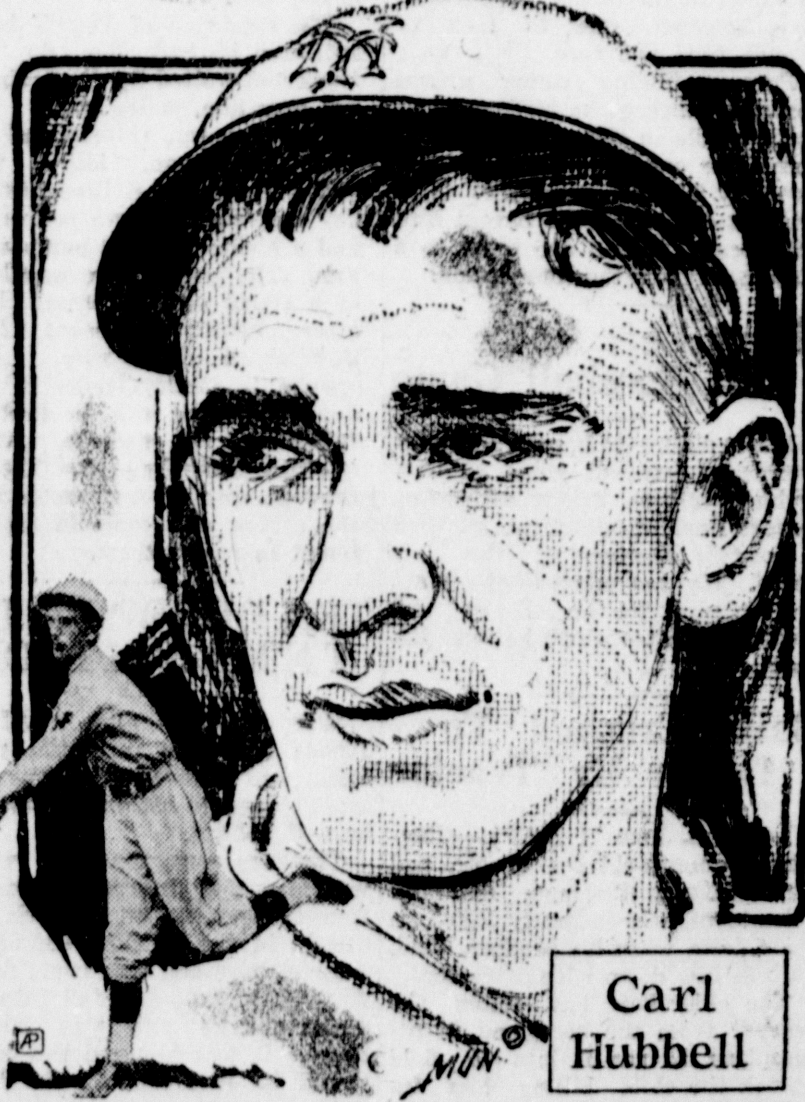

Picture a gawky and thoroughly frightened recruit throwing "nothing" balls, making wild pitches, falling down trying to field batted balls and heaving wide tosses at the bases and you have an idea of how Hubbell looked when he faced the Pirates one hot afternoon last August.

But everything Carl did wrong in his first appearance was done with perfect polish in his spectacular performance against the same team less than nine months later.

Spotted by a roaming New York sports writer as a good prospect and picked up by the Giants with the added recommendation of a veteran scout Hubbell, then 24, came to the metropolis while the Giants were sporting pennantward. About the second day out he was rushed into the game to halt a Pittsburgh rally.

Nick Altrock at his best couldn't have been half as good as Carl was at his worst that afternoon.

He started by spotting the Pirates to a full set of passes. Then he made a wild pitch. A cluster of hits followed and when a puny little grounder came his way Carl kicked the ball, then overran it and finally sat down. Picking himself up he hurried to shoot the ball to second for a force out. The ball called into centerfield and Carl was hustled out of the game. The identical play that finished

Who are the people who have made this car such an overwhelming success?

The New Pontiac Big Six is scoring a tremendous success. All previous Pontiac production records have been surpassed in meeting the enthusiastic demand for this car. But the most interesting phase of Pontiac's latest and greatest success lies, not in the number of people who are buying it, but in the kind of people. They give the real clue to what this car provides.

The New Pontiac Big Six was created for those progressive people who had been seeking a finer low-priced automobile. It was designed to enable them to step up the quality of their motor cars without stepping out of the low-priced field. As a result, they have bought the New Pontiac Big Six by tens of thousands, enabling us once again to tell the familiar story . . . Pontiac Six reaches a new high point in sales.

A special demonstration has been arranged to show how thoroughly the New Pontiac Big Six lives up to its name. If you will come in for this demonstration, you will learn the reasons for Pontiac's success.

(From Salem, Virginia, newspaper of 25 years ago.)

One of the prettiest weddings ever seen in Salem took place last night at half after eight in the College Lutheran church when Miss Elizabeth T. Painter, third daughter of Dr. F. V. N. Painter, of Roanoke college, became the bride of the Rev. H. W. A. Hanson, of Wilmington, N. C. The bride is a handsome young lady, with a charming, cordial manner, and of high intellectual attainment, having received both A. B. and A. M. degrees from Roanoke college, while the groom is a promising young minister who has just graduated from the Lutheran theological seminary in Gettysburg, Pa.
The church was artistically decorated in pink and green. Two arches at the ends of the aisles were covered with beautiful mountain foliage and around the altar rail were fastened up at intervals with huge bunches of pink peonies. A mass of ferns and palms banked in front of the pulpit, formed an effective background for the bridal party.

Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party entered the church to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mr.
Paul Mann. The six bridesmaids advanced in pairs up the left aisle of the church while the groomsmen entered from the right. The bridesmaids were daintily attired in 1830 gowns of white Paris muslin, with crush girdles of pink peau de soie, and carried pink carnations, with bandeaux of pink roses in the hair. The following young ladies were the bridesmaids: Misses Grandville De Wald, of Ohio; Claudine Ferguson, Laura
Painter, a sister of the bride; Bertha Hanson, of Wilmington, N.
C., a sister of the groom; Mary Killian and Nellie Cline, of Springwood, Va. The groomsmen were:
Dr. Curtis Barwell, Mr. C. S. S. don Bowman, Dr. G. E. Koontz, Dr.
H. S. Rhoades, pastor of the first Lutheran church of Newark, N. J.; the Rev. J. J. Scherer, of Fairmont, W. Va., and the Rev. W. H. Bruce Carney, of Garrett, Pa.

Following the bridesmaids came the maid of honor, Mrs. A. H.
Trockmorton, sister of the bride, who was elegantly gowned in white point de Venise lace over white chiffon and taffeta. The bride entered with her maid of honor, Dr.
Martaret Painter, of Detroit, Mich., whose dress was of white organdy over taffeta with trimmings of Irish point lace. The tall and handsome bride looked her best in a beautiful gown of soft French satin with chiffon and pearl trimmings. She wore a diamond and pearl brooch, a gift of the groom, and her white tulle veil was fastened up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and white sweet peas.

The groom entered on the arm of his best man, Mr. Karl Rehder, of Wilmington, N. C.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. F. V. Painter, father of the bride, assisted by the Rev. C. K. Bell, while Mr.
Karl B. Patterson played softly on the violin "Selection from Kuchen," Op. 148.

After the ceremony the bridal party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mr. Mann, and repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where an elegant reception was given the newly married pair.

The color scheme in the decoration at the house was pink and white. The whole house was lighted with softly shaded candles and the bride and groom stood under a bell of pink and white flowers.
The center piece for the dining room table was a double heart of pink and white peonies. Delightful refreshments were served, consisting of a salad course and ices.
The salad was served in heart-shaped boxes. Before leaving each guest was presented with a box of wedding cake.

The wedding presents were numerous and costly, especially valuable being the gift of the groom, a diamond and pearl brooch, and checks from Mr. T. J. Shickel, uncle of the bride, and Mr. L. Hanson, father of the groom.

The Rev. and Mrs. Hanson took the midnight train for Richmond and Wilmington, N. C., where on the evening of Monday, June the sixth, they will be given a reception by the parents of the groom.
After visiting in North Carolina and returning for a short visit to Salem, they will sail on July the thirtieth for Leipzig, Germany, where the Rev. Mr. Hanson will study archeology for several years. They will spend the vacations in traveling over the continent and will also visit the Holy Land before their return.

THE OLD MAN

As down the street a youngster ran,

Although the path seemed wide,
Today I saw a gray old man Who smiled and stepped aside.

So strange his action seemed to me,

I turned to him and said:
"Why did you step aside, that he So young, might run ahead?"

"For you the youngster should have stayed,
And followed in your track."

The old man answered: "I'm afraid
I should have held him back.

"Time was that I was young and bold
And swiftly I could run,

But now I'm slow of foot and old
And all my work is done.

"To notions of the past I'm tied,
I've lived my little day,
And now I'd rather step aside Than block a youngster's way."

God grant to me so much of grace
When all my strength is gone,
That I can smile and give my place To youngsters rushing on!

past Sunday all the apparatus was fixed against use and but few were at the grounds.

Cement pavements have been laid at the properties of the

Max Davis Buys McCleary Property.—On Saturday afternoon Max Davis, former Gettysburg merchant, now a real estate dealer of Baltimore added to his real estate holdings here by buying from Mrs. Harriet McCleary the three story brick house in the first square of Carlisle street. He intends to make extensive improvements which will increase the capacity of the store room on first floor and will make flats on the second and third floors.
Later in the day Mr. Davis sold his property in the third square of Chambersburg street to Miss Hoke and Mrs. Scarratt, possession to be given later, and in the meantime he has rented these ladies the flat above the Hub store, Carlisle street.

Romance of Gettysburg Woman.
—In the department of "Romances of Pennsylvania," the North American of Sunday has a beautifully written story, woven around the experiences of Mrs.
Salome Stewart, who as Miss Myers, was active in the hospital work in Gettysburg during and after the battle, culminating in her marriage with the brother of the young man to whom she had ministered specially, and who died in the hospital.

L. M. Alleman Marries Miss Bessie M. Cox.—Miss Bessie M.
Cox was married to Luther M.
Alleman at the home of the groom in Littlestown on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, by Rev. J. S.
Hill, pastor of the Lutheran church.

L. M. Alleman is well known in Gettysburg. For a number of years he has been postmaster at Littlestown and is prominent in business and church circles.

The bride is not only accomplished but is a typical southern beauty and prior to her marriage lived with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Cox, in Hampstead, Maryland, where she was a favorite in society circles.

School Board Completes Committee.—At a meeting of the school board last evening six members of the association for playground control were chosen. The school board's selection was C.
William Beales, Mrs. Mary M.
Power and Mark K. Eckert for the three year term and Miss Annie Horner, Charles W. Stock and Thomas J. Winebrenner for the one year term.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

"Gracious me!" thought the little rabbit, as he hopped along in the darkness, "that was a narrow escape from that old Owl.
Next time I meet Miss Firefly I must thank her for the help of her tiny lantern. Dear, dear!
Didn't that old Owl's eyes blink and wink when she turned her lantern full in his face," and with a low chuckle on went the little bunny, hippy hop, clipperly clop, nimbly, but carefully, hip, hop, hop!

Just when he heard a mother Thrush singing to her birdies. And off in the distance somewhere, but not so very far, Willie Wind gently buckled the horns of the bunny-suckle flower. He made such soft, sweet music that the little rabbit felt sleepy and so crept into a friendly hollow stump for another nap.

But, oh dear me! While he slept, never dreaming of harm; no indeed,—but dreaming of clover tops and candy drops, who should come along in the gray of the morning but Danny Fox, Old Man to her home on Breckenridge street after a visit of several days with friends in Hanover.

Mrs. Oliver F. Trone and children, of Hanover, are visiting for several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stine, of Buford avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Dull, of Frederick, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Butt.

Bonneauville.—Mr. and Mrs.
Lenus Smith spent last Thursday with friends in York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Klunk and children, of Midway, are spending a few days at the home of L. J. Noel.

Mrs. L. A. Noel spent a few days with friends in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Musser, of Gettysburg, spent Sunday evening with friends in this place.

Peter Gebhart, of this place, and sister, Anna, of Hanover, spent Sunday with friends at Harrisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Gebhart, spent Sunday with friends at Mt.
Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Bushman and daughter, Bessie, of Hampton, spent Sunday at the home of E. L.
Goulden and family.

Weasel and Robber Night Hawk.
Why they should all three be whispering together is a mystery.
Had the little rabbit chanced to open his eyes and look out he would have been terrified and scurried.
But on he slept until, all of a sudden, a twig snapped, click, clack!
"Oh, dear, oh, dear! I wish I were home!" cried the little rabbit, as he looked through a crack in the old stump.

"I'm sure I smell rabbit," remarked Old Man Weasel.

"I smell something mighty nice," chuckled Danny Fox.

"Look!" cried Old Man Weasel, whose sharp eyes had spied the tip of the little rabbit's nose that twinkled just like a star on a frosty night. Oh, yes, when a rabbit's nose twinkles like that it shows he is badly frightened.

Danny Fox and Robber Night Hawk turned their eyes toward the old hollow stump.

"I'm lost this time, I know it," thought the poor little rabbit, all a-tremble.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled Danny Fox, as he crept forward on his tiptoes.

"He, he!" went Old Man Weasel.
"Ho, ho!" cried Robber Night Hawk.

But don't count your chickens before they are hatched! Just then the terrified, scurried little rabbit spied a tiny ladder in the hollow trunk. So up he hopped. And when he reached the top what do you suppose he saw? The big, kind American Eagle, quietly perched on a limb and looking up at the morning star.

"What's the matter?" asked the great bird, in a kind voice.

"I'm in a dreadful fix," answered the little rabbit, and he went on to explain what had happened, and what might happen, and goodness knows what not! He certainly was a scurried little bunny.

"Cheer up, Bunnikins!" said the great Eagle. "Hop on my back and sit tight between my big wings. I'll pilot you home, never you fear."

"Let's be off," cried the little rabbit, looking down into the hollow tree trunk to see if Old Man Weasel were coming up the stairway. Sure enough, Old Man Weasel was. So into the next story flew the big Eagle with our dear little rabbit.

GOLD BULLETS

by Charles G. Booth

SYNOPSIS: Driven into the deserted Lundy saloon by the fury of the Skull Valley sandstorm, John Peebles is pursued in the dark by an unknown enemy. From behind the bar on the first floor, Peebles flees from his assailant's bullets to a gallery on the floor above.
Peebles curls a chair at the man, grapples with him and is thrown against the wall. As he strikes it, he discovers a small door, through which he crawls into another room.
The door bolts. Peebles collapses, temporarily safe from his attacker.

Chapter 22
POKER FACES

THE storm lashed at the building and loose boards rattled like skeletons dancing in a closet. I was vaguely aware of the man investigating the other side of the wall. He would rap on the door with the butt of his pistol, then hurt himself upon it, but without effect. I was too ill to care and too dazed to move. Some time passed and then I heard him no more.

Presently I began to feel better.
The room was pitch black. I still had a single match. Treasuring it between my fingers, I was loth to use it.

If I struck the match the flame would burn out and I would have lost my last anchorage in reality.
In a way, I think I feared the light even more than I did the dark, for

The two men neither spoke nor moved.
That paralyzing coldness began to creep over me again, but I shook it off. Struggling mightily, I managed to get to my haunches. Then I remembered the solitary match in my hand. The very thing to attract their attention!

I drew the match sharply across the floor; but it must have been defective, for while the phosphorus flared up it did not light the stick, but hissed and sputtered and began to go out. The brief and feeble flame made little impression on the dark face of the room but it did slightly illuminate the surface of the table. At what I saw I dropped the match and flopped down on my back again.

"I am mad, or else I am dreaming," I said, quite aloud.

The two men did not speak.
In that moment of light I had seen playing cards and stacks of poker chips on the table. The two men were playing poker in the dark and their cards were exposed!
It was a showdown.

Crouched against the floor, I fought the horror rising in my breast. I was asleep! That was it, of course. Afterwards, I would laugh at my crazy nightmare! And yet—and yet—I ran my hands over the floor. Sand scoured my finger

Silent, stony figures at the table—their flesh was cold.

I had an uncanny sense of some fresh horror awaiting me. This sounds absurd, but it will indicate to you the abnormal state of my mind and how unfitted I was to pass on the nature of what was to follow.

I tried to rid my mind of its obsession by focusing my attention on the events that had brought me to this graveyard town. Gold bullets . . . poker chips . . . playing cards . . . the man "Jerry" . . .

Andrew Ogden and Alex Peterson the same man . . . blackmail . . .
Mrs. Joe Lundy . . . Dillon . . .
Furie . . . Jerry flying for his life —but it wasn't Jerry! . . . Nathan Hyde . . . Jerry and Lucy driving into the sandblast. And then:
who had fired on me at the mine?
Furie — Dillon — Dillon — Furie?
Furie —?

"God help me!" I thought. "It can't be real! Or else I am going mad!"

I found, then, that the storm had stopped. When, I did not know, for I had lost track of time. The silence was more devastating to my tortured nerves than the uproar which had preceded it. I wanted to weep, to laugh, to scream, to dash my head against the floor.

And then I made a discovery.
The room wasn't as dark as it had been when I fell in through the door. I made out the shape of a small window on the north side of the room. As I continued to stare at the window a paralyzing coldness came over my body.

I was not alone in the room!
Two men were sitting facing each other over a table in front of the window. The outline of their heads and shoulders merged into the shadows which enclosed the frame. That is, unless I were mad, and I was not at all sure that I was not! They must know I was here.
Why didn't they speak, or come to me? They sat perfectly still.

Why didn't they move? They sat in darkness. Why didn't they make a light?

I moved my lips in speech, but no word fell from them, and I hammered on the floor with my fists. Again I tried to speak, this time with better success.

"Say, there! I wish you'd help me!"

ends. I felt of my body—thin and bony, but real enough. Breathing deeply, I lifted my eyes to the window again. The outlines of the two heads and shoulders were still there.

"Well," I said aloud, "if you want to sit in the dark pretending to play poker, why shouldn't you? It's your business, isn't it? And if you don't choose to take notice of me I can likewise ignore you."

But this nonsense didn't check my rising hysteria, which suddenly got the better of me.

"Who are you?" I shrieked.

Silence still.

"What are you doing there? You can't play poker in the dark! You can't make a fool of me!" I pounded on the floor with my fists.

No response.

"For God's sake speak to me!" I screamed. "Who—who are you?"

Still that devastating silence.

I got to my hands and knees and crawled towards the table.

"Why don't you speak to me?" I begged. "I can't stand it! I'll make you talk! What are you?"

Sliding my hand over the edge of the table, I clutched one of the playing cards. That, at least, was real, and I thrust it into a pocket.

Steadying myself with the table, I climbed to my feet. I thought I would fall, but somehow I managed to remain standing.

My trembling hand went out to the arm of the figure on my right.

I felt a shirt, gritty with sand. Still half blinded, I could make nothing definite of the man, but there was solid stuff beneath the shirt. I fearfully ran my hand up to the shoulder. No word or movement from the figure.

"Speak to me!" I implored. "A word! Oh, speak!"

Still that dreadful silence. Horror crawled within my breast. My hand crept along the shoulder to the neck, and then to the face.

The flesh was cold.

Something snapped in my brain.
All feeling went out of my arms and legs and body and I pitched senseless to the floor.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

THE DICTIONARY

I USED to think that the dictionary was a book of just words—a book of meanings, and pronunciations. Lately I have discovered that it is really a college course bound up into a book!

My friend, Frank Markey, woke me up to this realization recently. I noticed that he was always buying dictionaries. He has dozens of them in all sizes and colors. He tells me that he spends hours and hours reading and studying them—for informa-

Why, the dictionary tells you about everything these days.
And each new edition has something new added. It tells you about government, science, art, literature, business, nature, politics and people.

If any of us would take an up-to-date dictionary and study it for half an hour each day, we would know more in a year than the best informed college man of a few years ago—and, I might add, better than most of them today!

I spent an hour the other day in just going over the many given names of people and what they meant, their meaning and origin. It was fascinating.

People do not make enough use of the dictionary. It should be placed next to the family Bible in every home, by way of importance. There is more interest in a good dictionary than in most popular novels that are rated as "first sellers" and "top notchers."

It was old Doctor Johnson who worked out one of the first and most famous of dictionaries. Then Noah Webster came along and gave us our most popular dictionary. And many years ago, the Funk & Wagnalls and Century dictionaries appeared. But Mr. Webster's book seems to hold the greatest sway.

I like to open the dictionary at any page and read. In some of the latest are beautifully engraved and colored illustrations that are in themselves an education.

The dictionary is really an abbreviated encyclopedia—a whole library in itself!
And the dictionary isn't a man's book by any means. It's everybody's book. A woman can get dozens of ideas from it by which she can run her home. And a man can get ideas from it by which he can better run his business.

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD FORECAST MORE THAN REALIZED

JUNE 7 1924

"* * * The Chrysler is, in reality, the first step in the general revision of motor car design which is bound to follow its advent. * * * For it is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering, which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered in the industry."

—Advertisement Saturday Evening Post June 7, 1924

CHRYSLER'S INFLUENCE ON YOUR CAR

It has become an axiom of the motor car industry that much of what comes tomorrow originates in what Chrysler engineering does today.

For five years, Chrysler has been the acknowledged leader in thrilling performance. For five years, Chrysler has led the way in individuality and modern smartness of design.

Those in possession of the facts know that there is scarcely a motor car today that does not owe some improvement in its make-up to Chrysler—and has not become a better car by reason of Chrysler engineering achievement.

Emulation is a nice compliment to Chrysler leadership, of course. But the mere copying of features cannot equal the complete Chrysler results.

To you who are about to choose a new car, a natural question arises: Why not enjoy a Chrysler itself, so long as Chrysler smartness, comfort, performance and quality are the goals to which other cars are striving? Let us show you in a test of your own choosing the superiority of Chrysler to anything aspiring to compete with Chrysler.

CHRYSLER "75"—$1535 to $1795—High Body Styles. + CHRYSLER "65"—$1040 to $1145—Six Body Styles. All prices f. o. b. factory. Chrysler dealers extend convenient time payments.
